single parents are often "on the run" 24-7

We help each other learn valuable life

Every child should go camping, fishing and be part of the great outdoors and not just read about it in books. It's part of growing up. It can be tough as a single parent to go camping, fishing and be part of the great outdoors. It's a lot of work. SPHSP go camping, fishing and do other outdoors activities three to five times a year. When so many families go camping, fishing and do outdoors activities together, it's much easier. If you forgot something, someone else has it! We help each other. The kids play and learn

Support And Encouragement For Single Parents

Being single parents, and thus having only one income, it can be tough to do everything you may want to do with your kids. By joining together, the SPHSP Club can do more, and enjoy precious time when your kids are still kids! Plus, you will meet other single parents and make new friends. Single Parents need time alone to help strengthen their relationships, for single parents are often "on the run" 24-7. (Support System) Being a single parent is tough! Married parents often have a built in support system between their partners and their families. Single parents often need some help finding a comfortable social outlet for both themselves and for their kids. There aren't many groups that cater to events for adults and kids, so what should a single parent do?

The answer is simple, join Single Parents Helping Single Parents. SPHSP offer support and encouragement to single parents in their spiritual journey. We hold a fellowship or Networking events that focuses on the spiritual needs of single parents, along with occasional guest lecturers, that cover relevant topics that might better equip parents in navigating through tough times.

These Events are for single parents who have joined SingleParentsHelpingSingleParents.com . If you wish to see the details on some of our events, you must first join SPHSP. Only members of SPHSP will have access to the time and location details of our closed events.
